Greetings from the Gamecocks!

Your child is now away at college here at Carolina—learning to be independent, making new friends, gaining valuable life experience, and preparing for the future. But the truth is, they still rely on you.

And just as your student relies on you, every University of South Carolina student can rely on the University and its family of 4,300 faculty and staff who last year gave more than $3.6 million to Carolina in support of education. The University is firm in its commitment to prepare every student for the journeys that lie ahead.

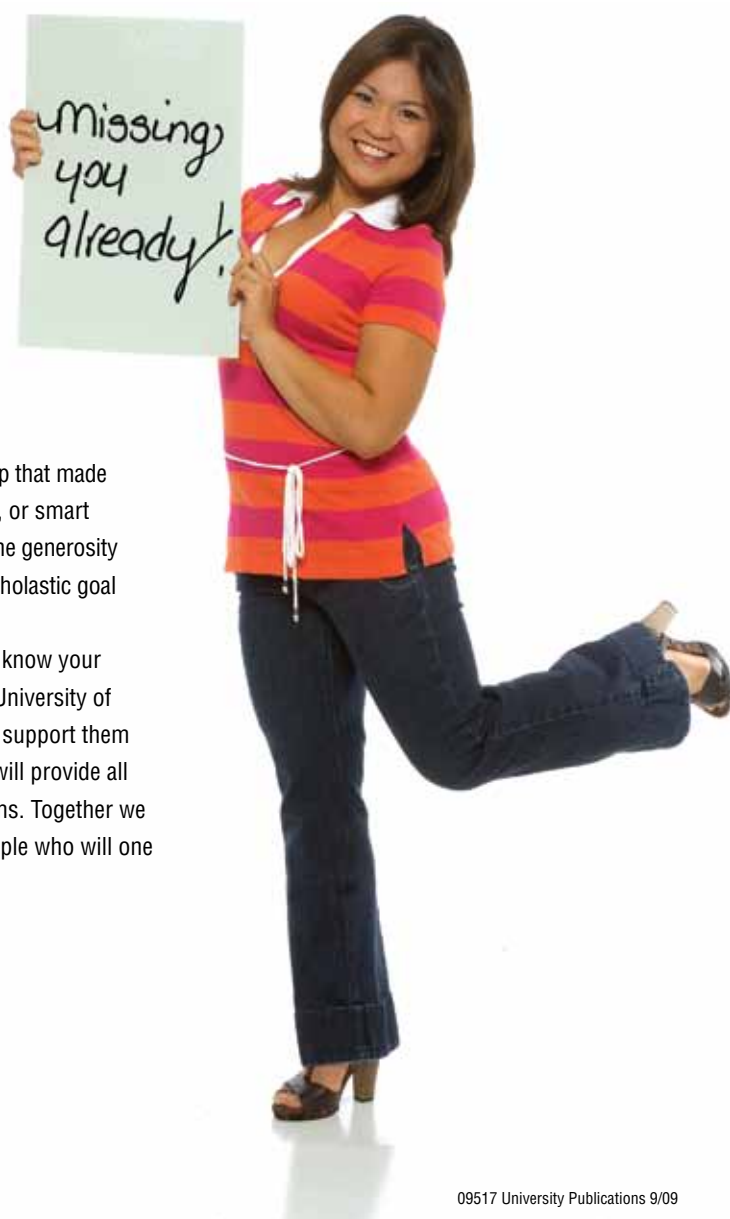

Because there are so many unique opportunities and amazing experiences to be had by each student, the Parents Annual Fund is here to provide additional resources for your child. In fact, not a student graduates without somehow being impacted by private giving. Favorite professors, the scholarship that made the difference, lights on the intramural fields, current library books, or smart classrooms—each little something extra is made possible through the generosity of others. Tuition and state support alone cannot ensure that each scholastic goal is achieved.

Alumni and friends who support the University are not likely to know your student personally, their favorite food, or how they felt when their University of South Carolina acceptance letter came in the mail, but you do. You support them in every way you can. Today, your gift to the Parents Annual Fund will provide all students with unique opportunities to excel and achieve their dreams. Together we can, and will, continue to accept and graduate the finest young people who will one day lead our state and nation.

For Carolina,

Jerry T. Brewer
Associate Vice President for Student Affairs
